HOOVER GUIDES HUNT

Widmer Remains "On Ice" in Moyamensing; Brags Of His Career

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16—Secrecy today veiled the movements of the G-men, reported on the trail of Charles and Frank Bird, companion fugitives of James Widmer, 32-year-old desperado, caught here yesterday.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was directing the hunt for the two widely sought public enemies. Local Federal Bureau of Investigation agents denied, however, Hoover came to this city to take personal charge of the situation.

Widmer, who bragged to police about his career exploits, remained "on ice" in Moyamensing Prison, following his arrest by two motorcycle policemen, wiping his automobile fenders. He admitted, detectives said, he escaped from the penitentiary in Joliet, where he was serving a life term.

Misfortune "Dogs" Steps Of Family in Yardley

YARDLEY, Oct. 16—With Friday the 13th having nothing to do with it, misfortune certainly reigned at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hillborn, of near Yardley, this week.

Working for years without any vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Hillborn left on Tuesday for Washington, D. C., for a week's auto trip. Upon reaching Baltimore, Mrs. Hillborn became ill, and seeking a doctor, was immediately removed to the John Hopkins Hospital, where ptomaine poisoning was discovered. After treatment and rest she was able to return home, on Thursday, only to find in their absence from home that one of the children, Samuel, age 17 years, had taken his father's shotgun out into the field to shoot crows. With the barrel of the gun being stopped, or some mechanical defect, the gun back-fired, tearing the index finger of young Sam. Not realizing the seriousness of the injury, young Hillborn spurned medical aid. Rushed to Mercer Hospital on Thursday evening, four stitches were taken in the hand.

Upon returning home from the Trenton hospital, the Hillborn household endeavored to indulge in a game of cards, when one of the boarders, John Wildman, slumped to the floor with a heart attack. Dr. R. J. Horwell was called, where he worked for some time to revive Wildman.

With the household all astrir, all thought of sleep being banished, an attempt was made to resume the card game, when someone yelled fire, and it was discovered that the house on the next farm was completely enveloped in flames. The house was a new construction, almost completed, and two carpenters were living there until their work was completed. The fire had reached such intensity that the two Philadelphia men were unable to remove their clothes from the building.

Bensalem Alumni Association To Meet

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 16—The first regular Fall meeting of the Bensalem Township High School Alumni Association will be held Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the high school building.

The meeting, which has been called by Francis Williams, president of the association, will be one of the most important from the standpoint of organization and planning programs of the whole year.

Business to be transacted includes the election of officers for the remainder of the school year. Plans for the annual victory dance are to be made and committees appointed.

Immediate plans for the game between the Alumni football team and the High School Varsity will also be discussed.

Announcement of the meeting has been made to all members and President Williams urges all to be present.

JAMES W. LEFFERTS DIES; ILL 4 MONTHS

Deceased Was Native of Bristol, Having Been Born Here 72 Years Ago

FUNERAL ON MONDAY

A well-known native resident of Bristol, James W. Lefferts, died yesterday, following an illness extending over a period of four months. Mr. Lefferts was born here 72 years ago and continued to reside here ever since. For 27 years he had been employed as a wool sorter in the mill of William H. Grundy & Co., Inc.

Mr. Lefferts was affiliated with fraternal societies, including Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, I. O. O. F., for over 50 years and was a past Noble Grand in that organization. He was also a past officer of the Knights of the Mystic Chain, Chapter No. 103. The church affiliation of the deceased was with the Bristol Presbyterian Church, of which he was an elder.

During his early life Mr. Lefferts was active in community affairs and was a member of the Bristol Liberty Cornet Band, which was very prominent at that time, but has long since disbanded.

Mr. Lefferts had been ill for the past 46 weeks, being confined to his bed for that length of time. He was a patient in the Abington Hospital for five weeks, ill at the home of his son, William J. Lefferts, for eight weeks, and a patient at the Harriman Hospital for three weeks.

The survivors are his wife, Clara A.; son, William J.; daughter, Mrs. M. D. Weagley; one grandson, Francis C. Lefferts.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at two o'clock from the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street. Friends may call Sunday evening from seven until nine o'clock. Burial will be made in the Bristol Cemetery. The Rev. James R. Gailey will officiate at the funeral service.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY

Perkasie and Sellersville will unite forces again in a gigantic Hallowe'en celebration and steps in that direction were taken at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Perkasie.

"It will be along the same lines as last year's event," said one member of the Commerce body, "except that it will be bigger than ever and of course the parade between the two boroughs will be a feature."

"One of the remarkable facts about the Sellersville-Perkasie night classes for adults is the interest displayed by married couples," said Lewis N. Snyder who has secured the aid of the State Department of Public Instruction in putting on courses for adults at the Joint High School.

"We have a number of instances where wives have joined their husbands in enrolling among our courses," continued Mr. Snyder. "They not only find S.-P. a source for mental improvement but they find it to be a wholesome diversion."

The annual meeting of the members of Grand View Hospital Corporation and the monthly meeting of the directors were held on the same day.

SCURRY CLASS EVENT TO BE HORSE SHOW FEATURE

Entries Race Against Time Over Series of Jumps And Other Hazards

A TWO-DAY PROGRAM

Several outstanding and breath-catching classes have been included again this year in the two-day horse show which begins this afternoon and continues tomorrow afternoon at the Laid Estate, Newport Road, when the Bristol Riding Club puts on its annual Fall Horse Show.

One of the main events listed for this afternoon is the Scurry class event. In this event the entries race against time in the ring over a series of jumps and other hazards. Last year this class had a great number of entries.

Horsemanship for children is another event that is expected to attract much attention. This event is sponsored by Miss Helen C. Cullin, Elkins Park, a well-known rider and exhibitor. Miss Cullin spends considerable sums each year in sponsoring such classes for children.

The last event on the program is the bareback jumping class. Here speed, stamina and skill are all brought into play in order that horse and rider may return safely.

The Sunday exhibition will include the team of three jumpers. This event will be run outside the ring over natural hunt country.

The knock down and out class is also expected to provide many thrills for the audience. In this event the jumps are continually raised until horse, rider or obstacle is knocked down.

The steeplechase race will close the show on Sunday. "West Wayne," owned by Mr. George Whelan, Bustleton, winner of this class in the last show, has been entered again and hopes to repeat his victory of the last show.

ELECTRIC ORGAN TO HONOR MEMORY OF MRS. BLOODGOOD

Mrs. Mary B. Flagg Presents Gift To Harriman Methodist Church

HONORS HER MOTHER

Gift Will Be Dedicated At Special Ceremony Tomorrow Morning

At a special service in Harriman M. E. Church, tomorrow morning, dedication will be made of an electric reed organ, given in memory of the late Mrs. Mary R. Bloodgood, by her daughter, Mrs. Mary B. Flagg.

The service will be at 11.15 o'clock, and at this service also a new choir of 18 members will be installed.

The front of the church has been renovated to accommodate the new organ and choir.

The men and women of the church, in anticipation of this dedication day, have been working all through the week. The pews and woodwork of the church have been cleaned and repainted. At the same time some additional alterations have been done.

At the Sunday evening service the new choir will present a special service of music. Music by the choir, organ, and by Mrs. D. Moyer, choir soprano, will be presented.

In addition the choir has arranged for several guest musicians. Mrs. A. Brooks, better known as one of the "Graham Sisters," famous for radio and gospel singing, will sing. Miss Elizabeth Morris, violinist, will play. She will be accompanied by her sister, Miss Dorothy Morris.

Sunday there is a slight change in the hour of the worship services. Church will begin Sunday mornings at 11.15, and Sunday evenings at eight.

Kings Theatre Guild Receives Recognition

ANDALUSIA, Oct. 16—Six members of the Kings Theatre Guild will leave this afternoon for Philadelphia, and will experience their first meeting with the WIP Dramatic Association as members of this group. Invitation into membership in the association comes as a recognition of the Guild members' work in current productions presented to Bensalem audiences.

The work of Axel Kleinsorg, member-director of the Kings Theatre Guild; Ernest Orazi, Bristol member of the group; George Tibbetts, Edgington; Hilda Leversage, Andalusia; Helen Zelinsky, formerly of Bridge-water; and Ethel Hartman, Torresdale Manor, reached a climax in the production given by the Guild at Andalusia on October 8th.

In this play, "Green Stockings," which was presented before the largest audience of the current season at the Kings Hall, Helen Zelinsky, in the leading role, gave a scintillating performance which revealed insight in the various moods demanded by her character.

Ethel Hartman was captivating and fully exuberant in her role as the younger sister of Miss Zelinsky.

Walter Zelinsky, playing his first lead, did exceptionally well as the polished gentleman and soldier of fortune.

Douglas Gittens, a new-comer to Guild ranks, and George Tibbetts, long absent from local productions, both gave sterling performances. Elsie Wright also aptly portrayed her role.

Much of the success of the performance is also due to Eleanor Gallagher, Hilda Leversage, Ernest Orazi, Daisy Barnett, John Ferguson, and Archie Lummis, who, in minor roles, left nothing to be desired.

As members of the WIP Dramatic Association the six members of the Guild who have been accepted into membership will receive training on all phases of radio technique.

SIX SPOTS AND STOCKS

If you are disturbed by the erratic action of the stock market and at a loss to know what influences its gyrations, know that storms on the sun may be the cause. At least, that is the conclusion which certain scientists have reached. This view is presented to the public by Dr. Harlan True Stetson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He asserts that the correlation between stock market activity and the sun spot cycle over the last decade has seemed to be closer than similar correlations traced over longer periods of time between booms and depressions and sun spot activity.

"Prices on the New York Stock Exchange have paralleled these solar disturbances during the last decade in a most uncanny fashion," he further declares, "even to the temporary slumps of March and September which were marked by reactionary periods both in Wall Street and on the sun. If Major Angas, Colonel Ayres or Roger Babson or other noted investment counselors had predicted the market during the last eight years on the basis of the behavior of sun spots they could not have been more successful in their prophecies."

Solar activity and its relation to human cycles is a fascinating subject but one about which most people have only hazy conceptions and few convictions. They can agree with Prof. Stetson, however, that sometimes it does seem as though sun spots may be a mark of certain of cosmic effects which in some unknown way change our physiological and psychological condition. At any rate, the debate on that point is always intriguing because the subject has about it so much of the quality of the mysterious.

Dr. Stetson suggests as a hypothesis "worthy of serious investigation" the possibility that a change in the character of solar radiation fluctuating with sun spots may directly or indirectly affect the growth and character of foodstuffs, and subsequently the behavior of the endocrine glands of animals. Another suggested possibility is that physiological and psychological behavior may vary with the electric field and charges on the ions in the atmosphere, which may depend on variations in the sun. "The assumption that economic conditions depend on such complicated factors as weather and the physiological and psychological responses in man," says Dr. Stetson, "a speculative one, but should the assumption prove feasible, sun spots may work turning points in world affairs."

If we get anything out of all this, scientific speculation is not so much that the stock market dances its jigs as a direct effect of sun spots but that sun spots have a tendency to make men goofy. And what goofy men can do to the stock market is a matter of human record which all can read though they may not understand.

There can't be a revolution. Any group that gets mad enough to revolt can scare enough congressmen to get what it wants.

Alas! If the statesman is big enough to think of the whole country, he does not fatten his own district enough to hold his job.

If Black was a Kluxer and still has the nightgown, he can save money by having it dyed black.

New Crop of Comics Come to Top in Hollywood

There is a new crop of comics in the ascendancy in Hollywood, replacing some of the veteran clowns of yesteryear. In no field of show business is the mortality rate higher than among the professional funsters who are required to keep their routines novel and different or else they lose public favor. The Ritz brothers are among the sensational newcomers and have won featured billing in a comparatively short time. Martha Raye and Bob Burns are others who are now stars in their own right although they were unknowns not long ago. Others who have won their spurs of late include Joan Davis, eccentric dancer; Judy Canova, quaint hillbilly; the Yacht club boys and others. Al Jolson, Leon Errol, Buster Keaton and some of the other veterans are on the decline.

"Beauty's A Charm" by HARRIET HINSDALE

SYNOPSIS

Don Ames, publicity agent for the Bloom-of-Youth Cosmetic Company, comes to Carterton, Louisiana, in search of "Pearl Carter," whom he believes the original of the prize-winning photograph entered in a nationwide beauty contest sponsored by his firm. Young Clyde Dixon, proprietor of the town service station, directs Ames to Rosemead, the dilapidated Carter mansion. There he finds Pearl Carter to be a plump blonde, second wife of ineffectual Wakefield Carter and stepmother of lovely eighteen-year-old Lucy Lee Carter, whose picture had actually won the contest and a thousand dollars in cash. Lucy Lee's brother, Juddy, had substituted his sister's picture. Ames now proposes to enter Lucy Lee in the International Beauty quest soon to be held at Atlantic City, assuring Pearl that fame and fortune await the whole family with him handling the publicity. But Wakefield Carter must sign the contract, since Lucy Lee is still a minor.

CHAPTER IV

"I imagine you'll be able to make Mr. Carter see things your way without much trouble."

Pearl smiled. "Perhaps so," she admitted confidently.

"I'll make a memo to cover the points we've talked about and when I get back to New York I'll send you regular contracts to have signed. You bring Lucy Lee up to Atlantic City in June and I'll have the big ballyhoo going."

"Atlantic City!" Pearl's blue gaze became keener, more calculating. "I've always wanted to see Atlantic City—the board walk... those grand hotels. You say your company will pay our expenses, mine and Lucy Lee's, I mean."

He was writing busily. "Absolutely. You're her official chaperone, see? It's good publicity. Gives a girl class. Now if you'll get your husband to sign this, Mrs. Carter, since Lucy Lee is a minor."

Pearl went to the hall door and called. "Mr. Carter." A pause, then again in a sharper tone. "Mr. Carter!"

A voice from a room to the rear of the house replied in muffled tones and presently a middle-aged man appeared, a suit of crumpled linen hanging loosely on his thin form. His sallow face was a little flushed with sleep. Obviously Mr. Carter had been awakened from a prolonged siesta. His wife's impetuousness was apparent as she stood waiting for him to cross the wide hall.

"Yes, my dear. You called me?"

"If I hadn't I suppose you would have slept all the rest of the day." She put her hand on his arm, led him into the room. "This is Mr. Ames. He wants to talk to you on business."

"Publicity Director for Bloom-of-Youth Cosmetics, Inc., Mr. Carter. Delighted to meet you."

Ames pumped the older man's hand energetically, thinking: "Flashy old party. But he hasn't done a day's work in twenty years." "Dropped in to see you on a little matter of a contract, Mr. Carter. For your daughter. Something that's going to make her plenty of money, as I've been explaining to Mrs. Carter."

Wakefield Carter looked from one to the other in bewilderment. "My daughter? I fear I do not quite understand, sir. Bloom-of-Youth Cosmetics? What does the gentleman mean, my dear? You know that Lucy Lee has never used cosmetics in her life." He turned to the visitor with a vague, courteous smile. "So I am afraid it is useless to endeavor to make a sale of your products here, sir."

"Oh, Mr. Carter," Pearl protested, annoyed. "Mr. Ames isn't trying to sell anything. He came to tell us about Lucy Lee winning the Beauty Prize—for a thousand dollars!"

Mr. Carter's bewilderment was pathetic. "Beauty Prize? Did I understand you to say Lucy Lee has won a thousand-dollar prize for beauty?" He stared at the young man in frank amazement.

"We're going to enter her in the International Beautyquest at the Cosmetics' Annual Convention, Atlantic City, First week in June."

Once more Don Ames went into the details of the publicity campaign he meant to launch, and its certain financial rewards. "So you see, Mr. Carter, there's a great future for your daughter, if she's handled right. Just leave it to me. I know all the ropes and Bloom-of-Youth Cosmetics can swing a lotta votes at that Convention. Lucy Lee Carter is going to be the next Queen of the International Beautyquest!"

"All you have to do is sign this paper," Pearl Carter took the fountain pen proffered by Ames and held it toward her husband.

Wakefield Carter was plainly still bewildered, quite unable to cope with these startling new developments in his ordinarily uneventful existence. "But Pearl, my dear, it hardly seems right for us to do this," he protested feebly. "After before the Civil War but has a roof that leaks like a sieve! Besides—" her eyes narrowed shrewdly and her tone suddenly changed—"It's for Lucy Lee's own good, isn't it? She will have the things a girl naturally wants—pretty clothes, a good time—things she could never hope to get any other way."

"I suppose what you say is true," Carter wavered, "but still—" His flickering eyes looked past his wife to where Lucy Lee stood in the wide-flung French doors opening on the terrace. With her was a slender boy of perhaps twelve years, about whose slim shoulders an arm was placed as she held him close. "Come in, daughter. We were only just mentioning your name."

The two came slowly into the room. Juddy's gaze fixed with apprehension on the face of his stepmother, whose uncertain temper he quite evidently dreaded. Lucy Lee's reply was low and her cheeks flushed as she spoke. "Yes, Daddy Carter, I heard what Pearl said."

"And what do you say, daughter?"

The girl's answer was hesitant, faltering. "I—I don't really want to go away from home, Daddy. I love Rosemead. Can't we just stay here like we always have done?"

Il Duce

Donna Rachele Mussolini

Almost eclipsed by the shadow of her important husband, Mrs. Benito Mussolini is nevertheless a distinctive person in her own right. Born of humble peasant stock in Romagna, she met young Benito Mussolini while she was working as a maid in his father's tavern. They were married in 1912 when Mussolini went to Milan to edit a Socialist newspaper. Despite her husband's rise to power, Donna Rachele today avoids all social affairs and occupies herself with routine household duties. She lives quietly in the modest Villa Torlonia in Rome with her two youngest children and husband. Aside from her domestic responsibilities, she gets her greatest enjoyment from visiting with old friends of earlier days.

The Get-Together Republican meeting held in Croydon was an enjoyable affair, with approximately 100 present. After business, a volunteer orchestra provided music. The next meeting will be in Newportville.

On Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dolde motored to Philadelphia, where they enjoyed the day with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy entertained on Thursday their son and family from Mayfair.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Miller, Jr., Philadelphia, are making their home at State road and Patterson avenue.

The building was owned by Robert Yons, a member of the school board of the borough, but he has turned over the property to the state.

The state this week started proceedings against the tenant who is loath to get out. A court rule served upon her through the sheriff makes it imperative, however, that she move this week or be evicted.

Mrs. Hartzell, who conducts a restaurant in the building, contends a liquor license issued to her for a year still has some months to run and that when she vacates the building she will lose the money she paid for the license since she had no place to which to transfer the license. It is understood that within a short time, however, a place will be available and she intends to take advantage of the opportunity.

FALLSINGTON DEFEATED BY NEWTOWN TEAM

By Louis Tomlinson

FALLSINGTON, Oct. 16—After three scoreless frays in a row, Fallsington managed to score at last. But it wasn't enough to beat a tough Newtown outfit, which upset the Orange and Black for the fourth consecutive time this year. The final score read 14-2 with Tomlinson's aggregation on top for their second Conference win in three starts.

For the first and only time this year so far Fallsington really led their opponents. In the third period, Mike Derisi's charges scored an automatic safety to lead their opponents, 2-0. It came as a result of a blocked kick by Jim Castro on Newtown's 10-yard line. The ball bounced back into the end zone and finally rolled out of the playing field for an automatic safety for Fallsington's first points of the year. And although they earned it, they didn't really score it themselves.

Newtown came back fighting, however, and in the final period they pushed across two touchdowns adding the extra point each time as they chalked up the 14 points that netted them victory.

The line-up:

Fallsington (2)	Newtown (14)
Robbins	Gallagher
Jas. Castro	left tackle
Batten	left guard
Halderman	center
L. Appenzeller	right guard
B. Appenzeller	right tackle
Schaffer	right end
Patterson	quarterback
Lovett	right halfback
	Dutton

Periods:
Newtown 0 0 0 14-14
Fallsington 0 0 2 0-2
Touchdowns: Talley, Maher, Points after touchdown: Dutton (pass); Nolan (placement). Time of periods: 12 minutes.

ST. ANN'S TO OPPOSE DOYLESTOWN MOOSE

Attempting to garner its first victory of the season, the St. Ann's A. A. football eleven will battle the Doylestown Moose tomorrow afternoon on the latter's field. The Moose also will be after its initial victory.

Coach Dougherty's team has lost to the Burlington and Diston teams and is anxious to get into the win column. Last season, the "Saints" did not hit their stride until they battled the Doylestown team and the players are hoping that the Moose again will be their victims. Last season's score was 19-0.

Three times this week, the Purple and Gold were sent through their plays and from all appearances, it is most likely that the Saints will open with all their plays against the team that is coached by Leon Whitlock, former Temple University quarterback. Whitlock coached the Glenalde A. A. club last year and is familiar with Dougherty's system of coaching. He has his Moose team primed for the contest and this week added three new players to his roster.

The "Saints" have an addition to their squad in "Bill" McCahan, who will play end and also be placed in the backfield when a back is needed.

Game is scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock sharp.

You'll learn the pulling power of Courier Classifieds if you but give them a chance. Phone 846 today.

BENSALEM LOSES TO PEMBERTON HIGH XI

By Louis Tomlinson

PEMBERTON, N. J., Oct. 16—Bensalem scored a touchdown against Pemberton High here yesterday afternoon before the home boys could even touch the ball. But then Pemberton came back immediately to score before the Owls had a chance to handle the ball again. So the score was all tied up at 6-6 after each team had kicked off once and each team had the ball once.

However, Pemberton was able to score another touchdown later in the game, whereas the Owls did not cross their opponent's goal again during the tilt. Therefore, Bensalem went down to their fourth consecutive defeat as Pemberton came out on top, 12-6. Both teams failed to add an extra point to their tallies.

Bensalem, having received the opening kickoff, was of course the first team to score. Hal Robinson took that boot after the starting whistle blew and ran it back some 60 yards from his own 15 to the home boys' 25 yard stripe before he was downed. Bensalem made a first down on the five yard line, and on the third play after the kick-off the Owls led, 6-0. The touchdown play was a pass, Jack Scarborough to Hal Robinson. Robinson caught the ball on the two yard line and stepped over the last white line for the first six-point score.

The Red and Black boys then put on an offensive drive of their own which ended in knotting the score at 6-6. Taking the kick-off on his own 15 yard line, Don McDowell returned it to his own 35. And from here the parade to the Owls' goal line, some 65 yards thither, began. The feature of the drive was a 40 yard run by Ray Cramer on the first play after the kick-off to put the ball on the Owls' 25 yard stripe. Two first downs in a row put the ball on the two yard marker. Don McDowell fugged the leather across the big white line from the two yard line to tie the score. Pemberton too missed the extra point when Vic Swadis blocked the attempted conversion.

An unfortunate break led the victors to their winning touchdown. After Bensalem was halted on a drive at Pemberton's 20, the latter kicked out of danger, and into victory. The usually reliable Robinson fumbled the kick at mid field and the ball rolled back to the Owls' 40 where Pemberton recovered. Then a slugging penalty against the visitors put the ball on the Owls' 25 yard line.

Two first downs were immediately rung up for the home boys with the second winding up on the Blue and Gray's three yard line. Cramer then scored the tell-tale touchdown from that point after the visitors' forward wall held for three consecutive downs. But Cramer just barely crossed the pay-off line when he was downed. In fact the decision was very doubtful to many. Again the try for extra point failed but Pemberton had scored enough points to finally win, 12-6.

The Owls, however, came back fighting with their backs to the walls, and although they completed 9 of 18 passes, and completely outplayed the home team, being down within their 20 yard line at least four times, they nevertheless lacked the vital scoring punch during the second half and so their fourth consecutive defeat was pinned upon them. Pemberton's line buckled up on each threat the Owls showed and Don McDowell kicked out of danger every time Bensalem made eleven first downs to Pemberton's four. Bob McGovern played brilliantly for the losing cause.

Although coach Reimer made several changes in his line-up, giving it a thorough shaking up, the Owls nevertheless didn't get any breaks despite the good game they played throughout in outplaying their opponents.

BRISTOL BOXER TO MEET RITACCO IN PHILA. ARENA

Chet Castor, Bristol's first amateur champ and crack flyweight, battles in his first pro bout, Monday night, at the Philadelphia Arena, 46th and Market streets.

His opponent in the first money bout is the former junior and senior Philadelphia chap, Adolph Ritacco, South Philadelphia.

Chet is being managed in big time boxing by his brother, Carl Castor, and Charley Daggert. Daggert has a large stable of professional fighters who are showing much success under his management. Daggert, in his fighting days, was bantamweight champion of the Pacific coast. Under his tutoring he has turned out such boys as Eddie Cool, Gene Galotto and Tommy Cross. His last fight, in 1928, against Johnny Jadick, was won by Jadick in ten rounds.

Chet has bouts offered him at the Cambria, Olympic, and at Allentown, and his only remark is "I hope I can fight my way up to the windup class and fight Tommy Forte and John Marchiline."

He is also booked to box Joe Tagg at the Olympic Arena, Thursday night, October 21, in a four round bout.

LANGHORNE KEEPS GRID RECORD CLEAN

By Louis Tomlinson

LANGHORNE, Oct. 15—Led by Charles "Chuck" Klein, coach Charles Beck's Langhorne High Redskins romped to their third consecutive victory of the current season when they topped a big and strong Hatboro eleven here yesterday afternoon, 12-0.

Klein had the leading role in the Red and Blue victory, through his all around ability which even overshadowed that of his brilliant team mate, Bill McCahan. Many times, Klein ripped through the visitors' line and around their ends for big gains, all of which played a big part in the winners' scoring and eventually led to their victory.

The line-ups for the game were:

Langhorne (12)	Hatboro (0)
Taddie	left guard
Miller	center
Nemec	right guard
Newbold	right tackle
Everett	right end
Klein	quarterback
Hastings	right halfback
McCahan	fullback

Periods:
Langhorne 6 6 0 0-12

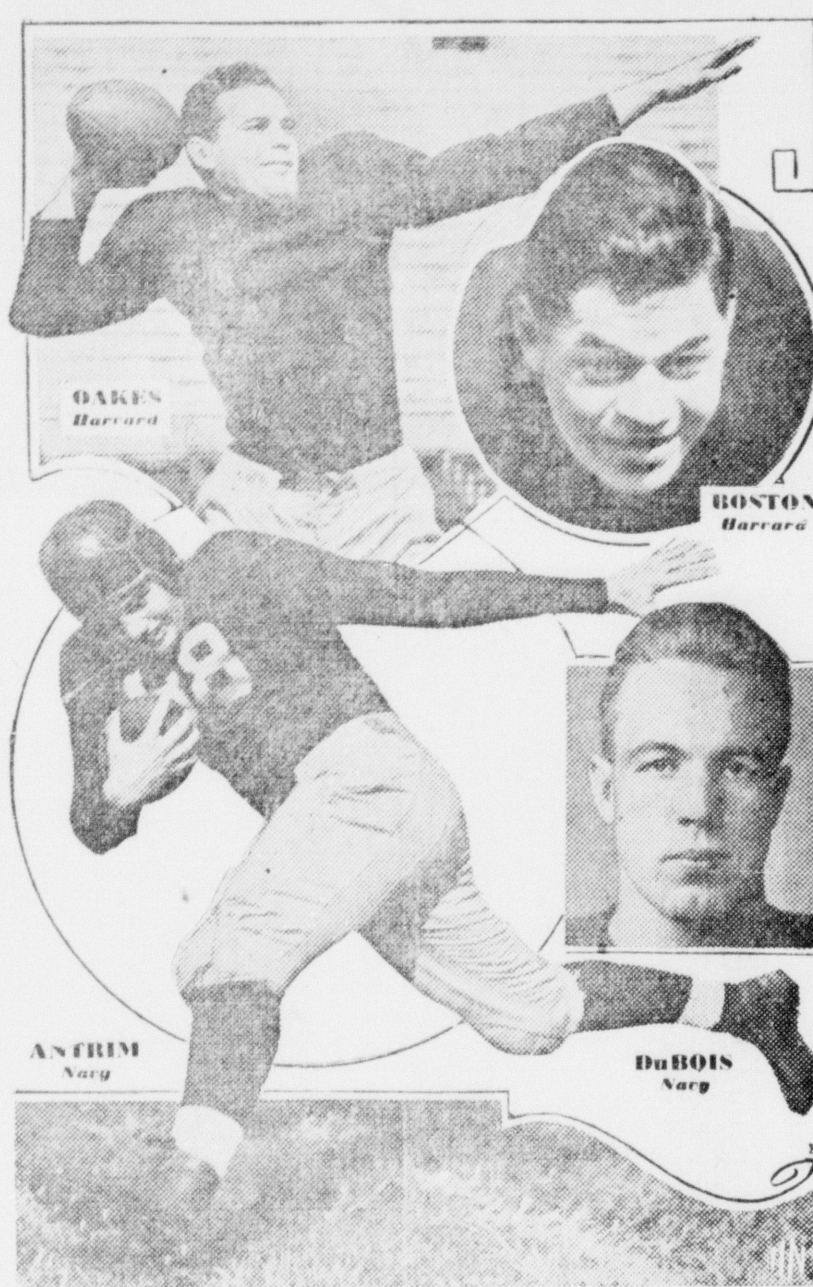

Touchdowns: McCahan, Reed. Substitutions: Langhorne, Hoff, Corrigan, Carney, Houser, Harding, Wetland, Gamble, Rukauf. Time of periods: 12 minutes.

To Wed Marques

Lady Elizabeth Percy (above), sister of the Duke of Northumberland, and the Marquess of Clydesdale, heir to the Duke of Hamilton, will be married in St. Giles Cathedral, Edinburgh, one of the leading social events of the season.

In Crimson-Middie Clash

The football machines of Harvard and Navy try each other in their first major test of the season. Harvard's 1936 backfield, with Arthur Oakes, ace passer, is re-enforced by Big Chief Boston, an excellent blocker. The Middies present a stiff line, with Captain-elect Du Bois at guard to run interference for a speedy backfield, in which Antrim supplies the plunging power.

BEDTIME STORY

(Nineteen thirty-seven, Streamline!)

"A story, you say, are you never through, 'Alright, JUST ONE, and it's bed for you'!"

This is no fairy tale, my boys. No make-believe, no fanciful ditty. No unbelievable, ghastly chatter. No tale that is merely pretty-pretty! This REALLY HAPPENED, a week ago. Look in the papers, and see that it's so. This is the tale of a Chinese hero, Who's also the champion disappearer!

"Chug-a-chug-chug!" I suppose they go. Chinese trains, like the trains we know. "Halt!" says the Jap whose in control. "We eat, my tummy's a great big hole." And halt they did. The Japs got out. And left the Chinese driver to pout. They went inside, to make a start With bird's nest soup, and rice a la carte.

The Chinese engineer felt sore. He munched on a biscuit and longed for more. And then he remembered a very odd thing. And his eyes popped out, and his ears did ring. "Alone am I on a Japanese train. Alone with only my Chinese brain. 'She's loaded with guns and powder and shot. 'I'll run her over the line, God wot!"

He did some pulling and poking about. And the train went on, with a mighty shout. From the Japs who ran from their cup of tea To see their train go off on a spree. He trode and he rode like Paul Revere And he hadn't time for doubt or fear And then, at last, a Chinese town And people running as he slowed down.

Over the line he'd brought that train And delivered its burden of death and pain. "Here," he said, "Oh honorable sirs, 'Tis done for the Land of my Ancestors!"

ENVOI: Chin, Chin, Chinaman. We don't know your name. But by all the Gods of Battle, You deserve eternal fame.

You plucky little yellow man Riding down the line With all the world agreeing That was velly, velly fine!

NEW JERSEY SCHOOL TEAM TO PLAY AT MORRISVILLE

By Louis Tomlinson

The Bulldogs of Morrisville will again battle on their home grounds this week, which means another victory for the Blue and Gold. Last week they opened their home campaign by walloping Newtown, 26-0, after losing their first two contests.

The opposition this afternoon is furnished by Coach Luther Burbank's New Jersey School for the Deaf, who last week dropped a tough decision to Langhorne, 6-0. They also lost their first game to Immaculate Conception, 14-6. Therefore, they will be seeking the Bulldogs' tails for their first win. But the Bulldog should send the Deaf boys back home with another scar on their record.

KNOW YOUR STATE

Changes Affecting Coal

(Prepared for The Courier by F. A. Pitkin, Executive Director, Pennsylvania State Planning Board)

Once wood was almost the only commonly used form of fuel, while men harnessed the wind and water to obtain power for industry. After coal was discovered, it not only largely took the place of wood for fuel but also generally supplanted water and wind as sources of power.

Now, however, other fuels and sources of power, such as fuel oil, coke, gas, and electricity generated by water (known as hydro-electric power) are arising to dispute the supremacy of coal. For this reason, as well as because of the general industrial depression, many of Pennsylvania's coal mines have been shut down or have been operating only a small portion of the time in recent years.

The exhaustion of the more easily reached deposits of coal has made mining more costly and frequently more dangerous than it used to be, for as the miners dig deeper into the ground, the difficulty of bringing the coal to the surface increases, and more elaborate and expensive equipment and safety devices are required. At the same time, however, a number of new devices have made the use of coal more efficient and more economical. Methods have been developed to use coal dust and the smallest sizes of coal which formerly were wasted. Automatic stokers and ash removers are making it possible for furnaces to be operated almost without human labor, while many new mechanical devices are being used in the mines themselves to cut down increasing production costs.

Though mechanical devices may reduce operating costs, they also tend to reduce the number of men who are employed in the mines. Such inventions, combined with the "closing down" of many mines and the long slack seasons in others, put more than a hundred thousand Pennsylvania coal miners out of work. There are nearly three hundred thousand coal miners in Pennsylvania, and nearly two-fifths of these were recently unemployed.

Because mining is so completely different from other trades, and mining communities are usually so isolated as to form a little world of their own, it is harder for coal miners to obtain other work when they lose their jobs than it is for almost any other group of persons. Usually they and their families stay on in their old communities even after the mines have shut down.

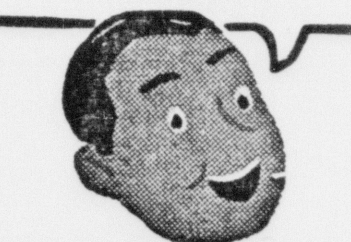

The future fate of these workless mining villages is a serious problem. Some of them may disappear entirely as their populations gradually drift away. Others may eventually become manufacturing towns. A number of silk and textile mills are now operating in the anthracite regions to employ the families of miners, but the practicability of establishing factories in small bituminous coal mining villages is doubtful.

GOLD FLAKES USED AS SAND

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(INS)—Workmen let forth a yell of surprise when they started dismantling the Leech-Conway house in Grass Valley. They found that sand used in the plaster of the ancient dwelling contained gold flakes! The house was 85 years old and was constructed when gold mining was at its height.
